AND
COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE AND LIFE SCIENCES
IOWA STATE UNIVERSITY OF SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY

In order to formalize the scholarly exchange agreement between Wageningen University and Iowa State University of Science and Technology, hereafter referred to as Wageningen (WU) and Iowa State (ISU), the two universities subscribe to the statement of principles and procedures given below and to the terms of agreement attached regarding the responsibilities which each institution undertakes as its part of the reciprocal exchange.

Believing in the critical importance of students gaining an understanding of the interdependence of all peoples of the world, Wageningen and Iowa State agree to the establishment of a reciprocal exchange of students between their respective institutions.

The universities therefore agree jointly to support the exchange of students between the two educational institutions by:

- Establishing a university body, or utilizing existing bodies, to provide oversight to the exchange program and to consider and rule on policy matters relating to the program.
- Selecting on an annual basis one or more students to be considered by the receiving university for admission and placement in an appropriate program of study. Wageningen and Iowa State will send students majoring in the agricultural sciences, or related fields from the involved faculties (life sciences, environmental sciences, technology & nutrition and social sciences). Upon mutual agreement, Wageningen and Iowa State may send students majoring in other disciplines than those previously mentioned.
- Agreeing to accept as equivalent each other's tuition fee level, residence provisions, length of academic year, teaching methods, examinations, and related provisions.
- Providing predeparture orientation for own students and post-arrival orientation for guest students by utilizing existing programs or establishing special programs.
- Agreeing to pursue the possibility of expanding this agreement to include staff/faculty visits and exchanges and research projects.

This agreement is initially for a five-year period, extendible by written agreement of both parties and terminable prior to the end of this period by mutual written consent.
